Pioneering collaboration with King's College London and South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust

COMPASS Pathways plc (Nasdaq: CMPS) ("COMPASS"), a mental health care company dedicated to accelerating patient access to evidence-based innovation in mental health care. Together with South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust (SLaM), the largest mental health trust in the UK National Health Service (NHS) and the Institute of Psychiatry, King's College London, The Centre will accelerate research of emerging psychedelic therapies, support therapist training and certification, evaluate real-world evidence, and prototype new treatments. George Goldsmith, Chairman, CEO and Co-founder, COMPASS Pathways, said, "In 2021, the UK Government included mental health care as a core pillar of its Long-Term Plan, paving the way for psychedelic therapies into the NHS following regulatory approval and reimbursement. It is a key part of our strategy to work with health systems to develop innovative treatments for mental health conditions. Research will initially focus on COMPASS's investigational COMP360 psilocybin therapy and supportive technologies, and will also cover other novel therapeutic approaches. The ambition is for the Centre to be a beacon of innovative mental health care models, and help inspire and accelerate the development of such public-private partnerships across the country. The acre woodland at Bethlem Royal Hospital, London. This dedicated and purpose-built space for late-stage clinical trials will be managed by leading clinical investment firm, Bionics Ventures. David Bradley, Chief Executive of South London and Maudsley NHS Foundation Trust, said, "We are seeing a rapid growth in the number of people with mental health problems seeking treatment. Professor Allan Young, Head of Academic Psychiatry at King's IoPPN, said, "This new Centre is all about putting patients first. The collaboration with COMPASS Pathways
